CLAY IS ELECTED JUSTICE OF PEACE IN HOT CONTEST

Carries First Township By Approximate Majority Of Three Hundred

WINNING SUPERVISORS

One of the hottest and most spirited election contests ever witnessed in Daly City was staged here last Tuesday, when an entire state ticket and four county officers were to be selected by the voters.

W. H. Clay, prominent attorney of Daly City handily won over Ellis C. Johnson (incumbent), also of Daly City, for the post of Justice of the Peace in the First Township. While this contest was hard fought on both sides, the result was never in doubt.

For District Attorney, Gilbert Ferrell won easily over Fred Hoffmann, leading all the way throughout the county.

For member of the Board of Supervisors, Fred E. Beer of San Mateo polled a large majority over Rosalie M. Brown (incumbent) of the same city for the post in the Second District.

Walter M. High of Burlingame won easily over Dr. C. V. Thompson (incumbent), also of Burlingame, for member of the Board of Supervisors from the Fifth District.

The vote in San Mateo County for governor and lieutenant governor favored the Republican candidates, Frank F. Merriam and George J. Hatfield, over their Democratic opponents, Upton Sinclair and Sheridan Downey, by a considerable majority.

Other incumbent state officers all received a majority in the county.

The Record extends congratulations to the winners in the contest for

DATES OF INTEREST FOR REMEMBERING

Announcement of Crocker
P. T. A. Luncheon and Meeting Of Board

Tuesday, November 13, at 8 o'clock, "Dad's Night."

Thursday, November 15, at 12:30. Mrs. H. S. Howe, Magazine and Emblem Chairman, will give a luncheon and whist at her home, 99 Acton street. All members of Crocker P. T. A. are expected to attend.

The 50 cents which the Parent Teacher Magazine costs will pay for everything. We want Crocker P. T. A. to receive honorable mention this year as she did last, and the only way she can is to have every member of her executive board subscribe for the magazine. Come and bring your friends, as Mrs. Howe is preparing a lovely luncheon for your enjoyment.

Monday, December 3, the next meeting of the executive board. Because the regular meeting date is the day after Thanksgiving, we have planned to change it until the following Monday. The board luncheon will be held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Caine, 471 Bellevue avenue, and Mrs. Ann Eason will be joint hostess with Mrs. Caine.

LETTER OF THANKS

An expression of thanks to the thousands who insured my election as Supervisor from District No. 2 does not fully convey my feelings. I feel you accepted my oft-repeated promise to represent your interests in an honest, faithful, intelligent and businesslike manner, and I am proud to know you accepted these promises with all the sincerity I intended.

This is my purpose, and I ask the co-operation and assistance of every good citizen to help me in eliminating from public office indifference, extravagance and favoritism, and to rear in its stead the banner emblazoned with the motto that, "A public office is a public trust."

(Signed) FRED E. BEER.

TRIAL FOR KIDNAP TRY

Natchie Mendola of Niantic avenue and Archie Bigazzi of Los Banos avenue, who are being held at Redwood City on a kidnapping charge, growing out of the alleged attempt to kidnap Wesley Strong of this city, appeared, last Saturday, before Police Judge Ellis for the purpose of verifying their ages to determine in which branch of the superior court they should be tried.

Their trial will be conducted in the superior court, as they were found to be of legal age.

DISTRICT MEET OF DAUGHTERS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

San Mateo County Parlor Gather In Session At Redwood City

A very successful district meeting of the Native Daughters of the Golden West in San Mateo County was held on Thursday evening, October 19 in Redwood City under the leadership of Supervising District Deputy Hattie Kelly and her corps of Deputy Grand Presidents. The deputies were assisted by members of the six parlors in the county, with Miss Margaret Rice of Bonita Parlor and Deputy to Menlo Parlor acting as President.

The Parlors participating were Bonita Parlor of Redwood City, Vista Del Mar of Half Moon Bay, Ano Nuevo of Pescadero, El Carmelo Parlor of Daly City and San Bruno Parlor of San Bruno.

Grand President Gladys E. Noe, of Sutter Creek, being the guest of honor, was presented with a gift of silver. Each of the other grand officers was presented with a potted cactus plant. The grand officers included Grand Vice President Anna C. Theusen; Grand Trustees Orinda Giannini, Alice Lane and Clara Gairaud; Grand Inside Sentinel Alice Oldham and Grand Outside Sentinel Claire Lindsay.

Deputy Gladys Bennett, who acted as Marshall, presented Supervising Deputy Hattie Kelly with a beautiful gift from the deputies of the county.

After the meeting, delicious home-made cake and coffee was served in the banquet room.

A turkey whist party, to be held on Wednesday, November 21, is being planned by El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West. Mrs. Leona Walker Falk is in charge of the affair.

TWO MEN STABBED IN DRUNKEN SPREE

Two men were stabbed in a fight in the Dante Cafe at 6726 Mission street on Monday night of this week.

Thomas Swayne, 363 East McKinley avenue, Sunnyvale, a railway express agent, was badly cut and was taken to Villa Sanitarium for treatment. He was forced to remain at the institution for several days.

Admo Denevi, 38, 359 Athens street, San Francisco, was uninjured, although mixed up in the melee.

Attilio Givaligo, 37, employed on the Baccellie hog ranch in Colma, suffered a deep laceration of the right shoulder. He was removed to the Allemany Emergency Hospital to receive treatment.

The three men were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace. After being held in the local jail for a day, the trio was released on bail. They will appear in police court for hearing next Tuesday.

Givaligo, it is said, claimed that the other men started the fight with him, and that he was forced to protect himself.

KIDNAP ATTEMPT ON OLD RESIDENT

Mrs. L. Perada, 70, of San Diego avenue had a harrowing experience last Saturday night, when two men stopped her near her home and attempted to kidnap her.

Mrs. Perada said two good looking young men driving an automobile accosted her and snatched her umbrella and threw it on the pavement. They then jumped into the car and drove rapidly away.

Mrs. Perada called the local police and reported the incident.

The aged near victim of the near kidnapping was greatly alarmed.

Police are patrolling the district for prowlers.

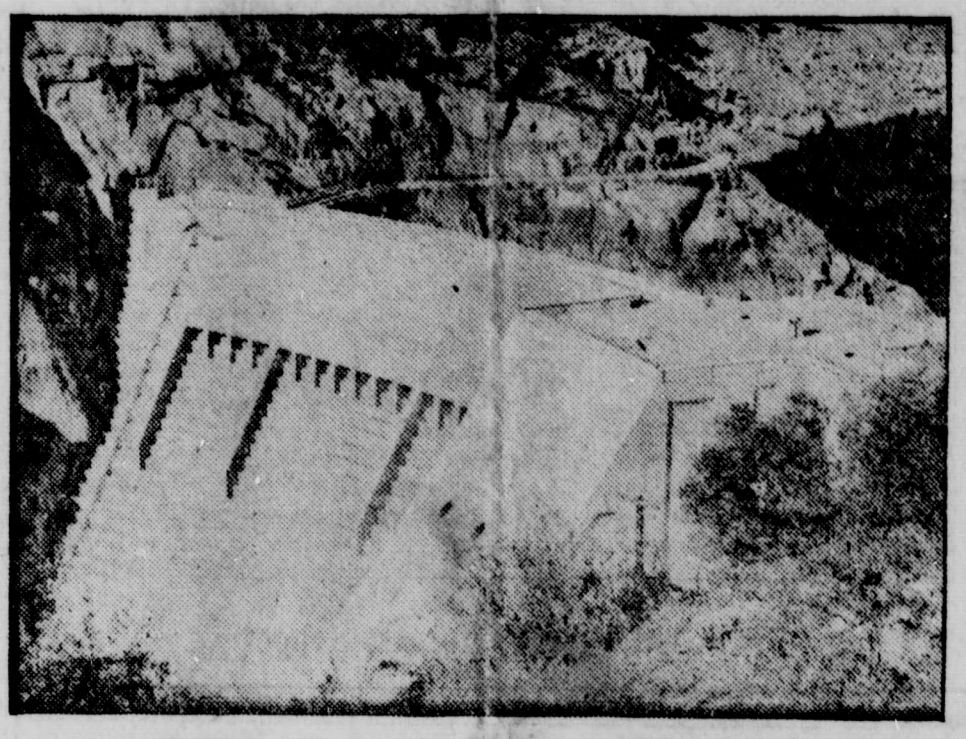

SON OF DALY CITY COUPLE DROWNED

A fishing trip to Pierce Station, near Benicia, ended in tragedy for Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lazzarini Sr. of Daly City on Monday of this week.

Their young son, Julius Jr., was enjoying a swim in a slough on the marshlands of Suisun and was suddenly caught in a swift current and swept into deep water and to his death. His screams attracted his parents, but they were unable to reach him in time to effect a rescue.

The body was recovered a number of hours after the drowning.

Hetch Hetchy Project in Operation

At Crystal Springs lake, in San Mateo county, California, the people of San Francisco and neighboring communities celebrated the other day the first delivery of water from the Hetch Hetchy project, Secretary of the Interior Ickes making the address. The project, costing more than $100,000,000, has required 35 years of planning and 22 years of actual construction. This photograph shows the O'Shaughnessy dam and partly filled Hetch Hetchy reservoir.

Alaska Highway Work Of Immediate Urgency

By J. W. MARCHBANK
(Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work)

Imperatively needed for the development of the great territory of Alaska is the completion of the International Highway traversing "wonder" lands from Vancouver, British Columbia, to Fairbanks, in Alaska itself. Everyone agrees the proposed main artery would be a good thing. Canadians are sure they want the highway. So do the people on this side of the line. What's the delay all about?

The rub seems to be the furnishing of the money for the project. Should the United States, through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or other governmental agency, provide the sinews of war, or should the Canadian Government, or should it be put a 50-50 proposition, with both governments doing their bit?

One suggestion that sounds well enough has been made that a deal be put through the terms of which are that the United States advance the funds for building the British Columbia portion of the highway, accepting British Columbia bonds to be retired through tolls collected from automobiles using the road. It goes without saying Uncle Sam would take over the financing of the Alaska portion of the highway.

Engineers have estimated the cost of the undertaking at $14,000,000, a sum that authentic reports from the north say the British Columbia government could not raise at the present time. In the argument for having the United States foot the bill it is pointed out that our government is very eager to have the road built. A short time ago a Vancouver newspaper gave the reasons, as the Canadians see the thing, seriatim, as follows:

First, as a colonization and development measure.

'DADS' INVITED TO MEETING AS HONOR GUESTS

General Pershing P. T. A.
Will Give "Old Boys"
Chance At Good Feed

You are cordially invited to attend the "Dad's Night," to be given by the Crocker P. T. A. on Tuesday, November 13, at 8: o'clock, in the General Pershing School. We are preparing an excellent program for your entertainment, and we will not have a long business meeting to tire you. We have asked Mr. J. R. Tittsworth of the Y. M. C. A. in San Francisco to speak to you, and, although he has not definitely announced his subject, we promise you it will be of interest to you.

The girls Glee Club of the Crocker School will sing several numbers, which we know you will enjoy. Maybe your girl is one of them. There will be lots of good things to eat after the meeting, and, being mothers, we know that you will like that.

Of course, we want you to bring mother, too. Every Dad and Mother of a child in the Crocker School is invited to be with us next Tuesday night.

THOROUGHBREDS OF EAST AND WEST AGAIN COMPETING

Keen Rivalry Between Two Sections Will Continue
Throughout Meeting

Another thrilling speed battle between top-ranking Eastern and Western thoroughbreds, in this case between brilliant two-year olds, is pre-arranged for next Saturday afternoon at Bay Meadows in the running of the $5000. Added San Jose handicap.

Eighteen nominations for the Saturday speed clash, a six furlong event, already have been received by the California Jockey Club. It is probable that not less than twelve of those nominated will face the starter.

From a "class" standpoint, the big field of nominees is in keeping with the promise made several months ago by California Jockey Club officials and William P. Kyne, majordomo of Bay Meadows racing, that the best horses in the country would compete at the new million dollar track.

Like in the Stockton handicap on opening day last Saturday, there also will be keen rivalry between Eastern and Western stables as to who can send the winner to the post.

The East's most serious challenger is expected to be Polish Beau, a Kentucky-bred juvenile that formerly belonged to Colonel Phil. T. Chinn, one of turfdom's most famous figures. Polish Beau has won three firsts in four starts and his victories include the Hotel Detroit Trophy handicap and the Manchester Purse.

Western horsemen, however, feel that Toro Nancy, California-bred youngster belonging to Norman W. Church, Los Angeles sportsman, will be able to turn back the challenge of Polish Beau or any other Easterner. Toro Nancy's last victory was the

OFFICERS NAMED BY VET FIREMEN

The Veteran Firemen Association met Friday, November 2, at 182 Santa Barbara avenue, their meeting hall.

The committee on the whist party, which is held every year in November, stated there would be a whist party held this month on November 24 in the Daly City Auditorium. Many prizes will be given, so try and be there.

Nomination of officers was in order and will be held over until next month, when the nominations close and officers will be elected for the year 1935.

Many good remarks were made by comrades present, after which a buffet supper was served.

Comrades Chesney, who is on sick report, is now at the St. Francis Hospital. We expect him back home some time this week.

JUDGE-ELECT CLAY THANKS PEOPLE

As I find it impossible to communicate with all my supporters personally, I take this method of conveying to them, and to the people of the First Township generally, my sincere thanks for the confidence expressed in me by their endorsement at the polls on November 6.

Honest, faithful and impartial administration of law and justice will be my aim, and I hope that my conduct of the office will merit the respect of all good citizens.

(Signed) W. H. CLAY.

MAN FOUND HURT NEAR CEMETERIES

Joseph Cervantes, 28, a laborer employed on a ranch near Colma, was found lying unconscious on the road near the cemeteries in Lawndale at an early hour Monday morning of this week.

At the Community Hospital, where he was taken, it was found that the injured man had sustained a fractured skull, a broken leg and internal injuries.

It is believed Cervantes was the victim of a hit and run accident.

Hit and Run Victim

Mrs. Frances Fricke, 34, of Crocker avenue is in the Community Hospital recovering from bruises and shock sustained in a hit and run accident.

Mrs. Fricke was struck down by a machine as she alighted from a street car at Crocker avenue and Mission street Monday.

CITY MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION HAS MEET OF INTEREST

Discuss Matters Concerning Welfare of Members and Elect New Officers

There was an unusually interesting meeting of the Daly City Merchants Association held on Wednesday evening at the City Hall Auditorium. Aside from routine work and the election of officers for the ensuing year the chief interest centered on the complaint which had come in to the effect that the Jefferson High School students were doing repair work and charging for it, and buying automobile parts for these repair jobs at a discount.

A number of business men engaged in automobile repair and replacement work in Daly City appeared at the meeting, and a lively discussion resulted. After a number of speakers had aired their views, a committee was appointed with instructions to attend the next meeting of the School Board of the Jefferson High School District on next Tuesday evening and learn the true facts in the matter and, if the conditions are as alleged, who is responsible therefor. The association members deem it unfair for students to be allowed to compete with men who are conducting a legitimate line of business in this city.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Fred Mather, president; W. E. Pitschke, vice president; Charles Williamson, financial secretary-treasurer; G. Bertoli, sergeant at arms.

W. H. Clay, who has served the association a number of years as recording secretary, having been elected Justice of the First Township, announced that he would no longer be able to serve in his capacity as secretary. The matter of selecting a successor was laid over to next meeting. It was decided to create the office of business agent, whose duties will consist of collecting dues and soliciting applicants for membership. N. J. Taillon was selected for the new position.

Two new members were added to the association roster: The California Auto Repair Co. of Colma, and Henry Rang, 260 San Diego avenue, Daly City.

The next meeting will be held the first Wednesday in December at the City Hall.

SUPERVISED PLAY ATTENDANCE BIG

Children Of Public Schools Enjoying This Phase Of Recreation Greatly

A right beginning indicates a happy ending.

Supervised play went over with a bang last Saturday, in spite of the rain.

All the children have enjoyed their Hallowe'en parties given by the various P. T. A. Units greatly and now they are looking forward to a Christmas Pageant.

The Committee on Recreation is trying to develop in the committee a means for the better use of leisure hours for the children of all ages who are attending the play at the school recreation grounds.

Supervised play will be conducted tomorrow at the grounds of General Pershing and Jefferson elementary schools from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

LADIES HOME CLUB REGULAR MEETING

The regular business meeting of the Ladies' Home Club will take place on next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the club house on Werner avenue and School street, with the president, Mrs. W. H. Clay, presiding.

The morning session will be devoted to the sewing group, who are anxious to finish the garments for children they have already started, a project the women are again sponsoring this winter.

An innovation will be an evening whist party to be held on Tuesday, November 20, at 8 o'clock. This affair will also be held in the club house. This party will be in charge of Mrs. Margaret Elmers and Mrs. Emily Twisten, who will offer some of the lovely needle work of the ladies as prizes. A quilt and luncheon set will be raffled. Refreshments will be served at the close of the party.

Owing to the holiday of Thanksgiving, the regular monthly afternoon card party will be omitted.

JOTTINGS FROM THE LOCAL FIELD

Mr. and Mrs. E. Keagle of Hillcrest drive entertained at a spaghetti feed at their home Friday evening last. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Bonald of San Francisco, formerly Miss Buelah Womack of Winchester street, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Milo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cinnamon of Oakland entertained at a family dinner Sunday, having as guests Mrs. Mary White and son Harold of Theta avenue, Mrs. A. Miner and daughter, Mrs. U. Roderick and children of Berkeley and Mrs. Mildred Barr of Westwood.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hicks and Mr. and Mrs. C. Page of San Diego avenue motored to Menlo Park, Saturday evening, to attend a surprise party at the home of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parker of Bellevue avenue left on Saturday for Placerville, where they contemplate spending the next two weeks as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Claude C. Long.

Mr. J. Carboni of San Diego avenue, who underwent an operation at the St. Francis Hospital two weeks ago, returned home last Tuesday. He is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Young and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Harrison of Woodrow street motored to Pedro Point, Tuesday, after abalones.

Anna Marie Nylund, daughter of Mrs. Marie Nylund of Willits street, had the misfortune to break her arm Monday afternoon, when she was knocked down by a coaster.

Judith Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Jespersen of Los Olivos avenue, is confined to Community Hospital, undergoing treatment for gland trouble.

Attempted Thievery Foiled

Several prowlers were frightened away from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parmenter of Hillcrest drive on Wednesday night of last week.

Hearing a noise in their garage, they looked out in time to see three men leap over the fence in the rear of the premises, jump into a parked machine and drive off. A neighbor who saw the car parked in the rear of the Parmenter home obtained the license number and turned it over to the police.

On investigation, it was found that the person owning the machine had moved from the address given on the license and could not be traced. Nothing was taken from the garage, but the prowlers had started to syphon some gasoline from the Parmenter automobile.

Hallowe'en Party

Howard Young of Templeton avenue was host at a Hallowe'en party given Saturday evening last in his summer home in Woodside.

George Berwick Passes

George Berwick, who resided on Niantic avenue for a long time, died on Monday at Community Hospital, after a long illness.

Mr. Berwick, who was born in San Francisco, was quite a character in Daly City, having been pound man for many years and was known here as "George, the Pound Man."

Mrs. A. J. Green of San Diego avenue took charge of the funeral arrangements. Services were held Tuesday afternoon from the mortuary of Lasswell & Co.

Birthday Dinner

Mr. Eugene Keagle of Hillcrest drive was guest of honor Thursday evening of last week at a birthday dinner given at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Keagle of Randolph street, San Francisco.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Keagle and daughter Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. W. Craig and sons, Donald and Bobbie, Mrs. S. Spence and the Misses Ruth and Lillian Keagle.

Bay Shore Auxiliary News

At the regular meeting of the Bay Shore Post No. 473, American Legion Auxiliary, the members made plans to sew six dresser scarfs and a patch quilt for the Veterans' Hospital at Livermore.

Mrs. C. Foreman, Eighth District president, of Daly City, was present. Refreshments were served after the business meeting.

DALY CITY VETS PREPARING FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Plans Complete For Dance In Evening and Daylight Entertainment

The First Annual Armistice Day Ball, given by Daly City War Veteran organizations, will be held in the Daly City Auditorium and Eagles' Hall tomorrow, Saturday, November 10. Plans have been completed to make this one of the outstanding events of the year.

One of the best five piece orchestras has been obtained for the Auditorium.

Among the entertainment numbers will be Jackie Hartman, heard over Radio Station K. T. A. B. in the "Capers" and appearing with Val Valenti at Lido's Cafe, and Frankie McCormic, who is heard with "Al Peirce and his Gang" over N. B. C.

Armistice ceremonies will be held at 11 o'clock. Dock and his Haywire Orchestra will be at the Eagles Hall, where in addition to dancing, refreshments will be served.

Tickets may be obtained from any Legionnaire, Veteran of Foreign Wars, McGraws Pharmacy, "The Hill Top" or Veteran's Inn. Tickets will be honored at either hall.

On Armistice Day, we of the American Legion, stand before you, not the boys and youths you sent forth to battle sixteen and seventeen years ago, but middle-aged men, continuing to serve America in the same spirit of consecration and devotion as we did in 1917 and 1918.

The guns are silent, the battle fields are under nature's green mantle, those who made the supreme sacrifice rest in peace in God's acres and we, the living, carry on—for God and Country.

Turkey For Birthday

Mrs. Frank Haiduk of Galt is a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burr of Irvington street.

Mrs. Haiduk surprised her parents when she dropped in on them Wednesday for a visit and brought along a fine large turkey from her ranch. This she presented to Mr. Burr, who will celebrate his fiftieth birthday on Saturday of this week.

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Mulliken of San Mateo entertained at a birthday dinner, Sunday, in honor of their niece, Miss Lyle Crane of Woodrow street. Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Crane and daughter Lyla, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Ensign and son Richard and Mrs. John Davenport of San Rafael, Mr. and Mrs. J. De Ridder and son John of Oakland and Dextev Mulliken.

Armistice Day Sermon

"The Eleventh Hour" will be the theme of the sermon to be preached in the Presbyterian Church, Sunday next at the 11 a. m. service.

In the evening at the 7:45 service the pastor will speak on "Hard Hearts." Strangers are always welcome at the various meetings of the church, which is located at Hanover street and Evergreen avenue.

Mother Of Resident Dies

Milton S. Maxwell of Brunswick street, business agent of the Butchers Union, is receiving the sympathy of his many friends on the death of his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Maxwell, who passed away in San Francisco early Saturday morning of last week. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, with interment at Mount Olivet Memorial Park.

Effect of Carbon

Carbon deposits cause piston rings to lose their elasticity and if allowed to accumulate may eventually result in sticking and binding of the rings, according to the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association.

When this occurs the result is excessive friction or loss of compression. Removal of carbon and examination of pistons and rings should be left to a skilled mechanic.

HAD LONG REACH

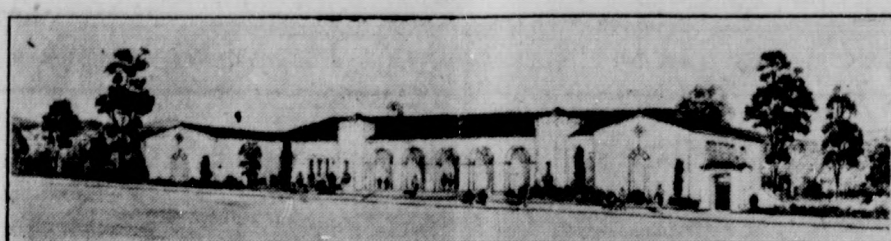

"Where was the defendant when he assaulted you?" Henry Martin was asked in court in Chicago. "About 50 yards away," was the answer.

LARGE MAJORITY GIVEN BOND ISSUE

At the school bond election Friday of last week the issue carried by a vote of almost four to one.

The result is very gratifying to all who had a part in making this result possible.

The committee organized some time ago to put the proposition over is highly elated over the outcome.

They wish to thank all who had a part in the success of this movement.

It is estimated that the plans for the three new schools will be completed and bids advertised for their construction by January 1 next, and the actual building will start as soon as possible thereafter. The new buildings should be ready for occupancy immediately after the 1935 summer vacation.

The government has contracted to take the $80,000 bond issue at a 4 per cent interest rate and also to grant an outright gift of 30 per cent of the cost of the material and labor used in construction.

Well, the old town is progressing. That's another good job well done. Let's keep our working clothes on and put over some other things for the welfare of the community.

We are with you in a big way.

HARD TO SATISFY

"When your husband buys you exactly one coat in forty-five years of married life, that's grounds enough for divorce," declared Mrs. Pauline Odesam of Milwaukee in filing suit against her husband.

BAND PRACTICE TUESDAY EVENING

The Daly City Band held its regular weekly band practice on Tuesday evening in the Daly City Auditorium.

There was also a business meeting and it was reported that 1000 letters had been mailed to citizens urging them to contribute small sums to the band uniform fund. It is expected this will meet with a liberal response by our residents.

A committee will be appointed to visit every fraternal and civic organization in the city and explain the advantages of having a uniformed band in our community.

There is no better advertisement for any community than a good uniformed band, and it is hoped the citizens will be liberal in their support.

The band has accepted an invitation to play at the East West Shrine football game next January 1.

Hallowe'en Party

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Keagle of 24 Hillcrest drive entertained a gathering of friends at a Hallowe'en party Wednesday evening of last week. The evening was spent in playing games and dancing. The rooms and table were prettily decorated in black and orange crepe paper and Hallowe'en favors.

Those who enjoyed the evening were Mr. and Mrs. E. Milo, Mr. and Mrs. W. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sculco, the Misses Pauline Aiello, Patsy Callan, Florence Demenio and Babe Malarino, and Messrs. Ronny Odesam of Milwaukee in filing suit against her husband.

GOOD DRIVING LIGHTS SAFETY WINTER NEED

With winter driving conditions at hand, the increased need for good lighting equipment is being stressed this month by the public safety department of the California State Automobile Association through a series of educational activities. Motorists are being urged to check their headlights both for efficiency and proper adjustment and also to ing order. Special emphasis is placed by the motorists organization upon the glaring headlight menace.

"Good lights, adjusted to comply with law, are essential to safety on streets and highways at night," says a statement announcing the effort. "Headlights should provide ample driving light to illuminate the roadway for a safe distance ahead. At the same time they should not offer a glaring or dazzling light to the eyes of oncoming drivers. Glaring headlights are the direct cause of many fatal and otherwise serious traffic accidents, particularly during the winter months. Usually they can be corrected by minor adjustments by an experienced service man."

"Tail light equipment, too, should be inspected to make certain that lights are working and also that they are strong enough to be visible at a distance of 500 feet under normal atmospheric conditions. Headlight lenses and reflectors should be examined, as they frequently become tarnished and dirty. This condition tends to reduce lighting efficiency below the minimum required for safe driving. "Even a poor light may be a glaring one. Glaring lights frequently mean poor illumination because the rays are scattered and bulbs are tipped too high."

"The hazards of night driving are increased during winter months. Inclement weather tends to reduce visibility. The shortened period of daylight means more hours of work for headlights, more difficult conditions to meet. Consequently, attention to lights should be one of the first items in preparing the car for safe winter travel."

SWITCH TO DIRECT CURRENT

It is reported that Eugenia Bankhead, sister of Tallulah Bankhead, the actress, and daughter of Congressman Bankhead of Alabama, may again wed Morton Hoyt, whom she has already married and divorced three times. In between she has married and divorced three other husbands. Her affection for Hoyt seems to operate on an alternating current.

THE STORY OF JENNIE

1—Jennie's folks were musical.
2—Her father came of a long line of bass drummers.
3—Her mother played the brass horn.
4—They decided to give Jennie a musical education whether she liked it or not.
5—They chose to make her a harpist, Jennie being too young to resist.

Soon Will Be Able to Forecast Insect Visits

While entomologists have been informing interested persons these many years of the threatened abundance of destructive insect pests as the occasion required, along with degree of intensity and width of distribution, the announcement that the Illinois State Natural History survey has developed "insect forecasting" in a serious way is not without interest and value. For the survey is not only perfecting its forecasting abilities through long and increasing familiarity with insects and their habits, but it is enlarging its knowledge of control methods and it is receiving heartier co-operations in control from farmers and fruit growers. So there is higher purpose in "insect forecasting" that deals with the rise and fall of destructive pests.

Last year an outbreak of chinch bugs in Illinois exceeded anything of this nature in the last sixty-five years. As something was known in advance of its probable intensity and of its geographical distribution, the information brought Illinois farmers to arms and the state and individuals co-operated in the installation of something like 2,000 miles of barriers and the use of insecticides to hold and destroy the insects. In that way many thousands of bushels of corn were saved from destruction. Without the advance knowledge and the "insect forecasts" that were issued as a result of the knowledge the damage would have been much greater and over a greater territory.

Now the Natural History survey forecasts a recurrence of the scourge, unless weather conditions radically alter earlier prospects. So a forecast again arms the farmers and others who wage war on destructive pests, and the survey is ready to lead the fray employing the best of last year's control methods and urging use of seed corn types known to be resistant.

"Insect forecasting," however, is in no way confined to the chinch bug and his damaging course. There are dozens and even hundreds of other crop and fruit hazards in insect life, all of them known to and their life cycles charted by entomologists everywhere, who have advance knowledge of their coming and often a very accurate knowledge of the prospective intensity of their visits. Certain tribes come by rote and on scheduled visits, others come in intensity and on occasions known to specialists in their lore; certain weather conditions may hasten or delay, may stimulate numbers or may decrease the hordes. So the forecasts of the entomologists are useful and their direction of the fight in control is invaluable.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Calf Love" No Laughing Matter

Harold P. Page, director of Y. M. C. A. boys' work, has proved himself a sage. In an article appearing in the The Parents' Magazine he warns mothers and fathers that they need not hope to escape contact with "Calf Love." They may deplore it, they may ignore it, they may try to laugh it off, but just so long as boys will be boys and there are girls in the offing, just so long there will continue to take place this phenomena of adolescent life to which the scornfully good-humored term is applied. In the opinion of this close observer of youth in his charge, this form of love is a beautiful, often wondrously moving drama, when put on by two clean-minded normal young people.

"Acknowledge its presence within the family circle," pleads Mr. Page, "greet it with dignity, with assurance, with sympathetic understanding."

"The boy and girl in love are in the grip of a cyclonic force. If you are wise you will make no attempt to play the superman or superwoman at this time," warns the director and astutely sets forth several common methods of parental attack which he believes are certain to miss fire.

"To deny the existence of 'calf love' by donning a mask of cold reserve smacks of cowardice," he flatly declares. "It only successfully erects a false barrier between parent and child that the latter will silently resent and as silently question its presence."

"Any challenge to reason is futile, because reason plays an insignificant part in 'calf love.' If indeed it is present at all. Pure feeling has taken its place.

"Ridicule is a cruel way of meeting the situation. It inflicts wounds which hardly, if ever heal, and may result in an utterly false appraisal by the young person of the intrinsic beauty of his love that may forever mar his relations with members of the other sex."

"A furtive approach will madden the young lover who considers a natural and intimate matter the object of a hidden attack."

"Force is futile and fatal during the flowering of a fragile emotion."

With keen comprehension of the peculiar need of youth during this period when a comparatively simple existence has suddenly been infinitely complicated, Mr. Page urges the substitution of tenderness for parental authority, and urges fathers and mothers to remember their own adolescence and the physiological causes and changes involved.

"Be frank with your boys and girls. Help them to grow up emotionally. Put a good book on sex into their hands. Above all, open your homes for good times and entertainments and see that the two young persons involved are together—for together they'll be—under your roof."

Sane advice, if you ask us. Mr. Page speaks with the knowledge gained by years of contact with other parents and sons as well as with the wisdom born of intimacy with two boys of his own with whom he must some day squarely face the problems of "calf love."

Longevity Secret Now Held to Be Moderation

Ten thousand Japanese more than eighty years old recently told how they live, and their stories agree with the general direction surveyed for the several, still dimly understood, scientific roads to longevity.

These roads are diet, heredity, rest and mental poise. All seem to be converging toward the common goal of moderation.

On the diet there are two recent significant surveys indicating how man may soon learn to prolong his life. The latest, by Dr. C. M. McCay, of the Cornell university animal nutrition laboratory, challenged the present practice of feeding both animals and children enough to produce maximum size in the shortest time.

In his colony of rats Doctor McCay has some already twice normal rat ages, and still going, with the oldest equal to 110 years of human life.

The lives of these animals were doubled by just one thing—feeding them less than enough to let them grow as fast as nature would permit.

The other survey shows diet applied in a manner more nearly fitting humans' desires. This was made by Dr. Henry C. Sherman, of Columbia university, whose experiments led him to predict that the average life span can be prolonged ten years in the near future by choice of diet.

No nation yet has ventured to apply the known laws of heredity that result in longer life. But the Japanese study suggests this type of heredity is somehow mingled with moderation; that those who inherit their longevity come from families neither very small nor extra large, according to the Associated Press.

This study was made by Doctor Nakayama, a school hygienist. To him the 10,000 reported on climate, circumstances and manner of living, hygiene, tastes and family records.

Living in cities, a tabulation of the 10,000 reports shows, decreases the life span. Aged women are more numerous than aged men. Seaside villages were the most numerous among the habitats of the long-lived Japanese. All villages exceeded all towns for long-lived inhabitants and the towns were ahead of the cities.

The majority of those who reported were agricultural workers. Most were of medium build, but some were corpulent and a few slender. They now go to bed early and rise late. They generally have led quiet lives.

MARVELOUS DWARF TREES

Only the Japanese cultivate the unique art of growing dwarfed trees in pots for room decoration. Sometimes these little trees, even after hundreds of years, are less than two feet in height, yet their proportions of stem, branch, and leaf are preserved with fidelity. Pots containing groups of six or eight fine ones, suggesting a forest, have frequently been sold for thousands of dollars.—Exchange.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a more natural movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving naturally without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

TENDENCY TO MACHINE
USE AT TRACKS FALSE

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Mechanization can be carried too far, especially in sport, where the leisurely, go-as-you-please attitude gives the biggest thrills. Just as standardization in life in general takes off the edge of enjoyment, so a race course with too many machines is not desirable. The stall starting gate and the "tote" undoubtedly came in to fill long felt needs, but beyond that there should be a limit to mechanical devices in a pastime in which the horse is the chief actor. In England they get along very well without the stalls.

F. Ambrose Clark, one of the best known of owners, trainers and breeders in the country, has a preference for horses against any product of the machine age, that is implacable, as was pointed out recently in an article in the New Yorker entitled "Stirrup and Leather."

A few years ago when the National Broadcasting Company sent a sound truck down to Westbury, Long Island, to broadcast the Meadow Brook cup race, which is run each year over the Clark estate there, Clark refused to admit any part of it until the motor truck had been put away out of sight and the sound equipment mounted on a farm wagon.

No automobiles of any kind are allowed within a mile of the course on the day of the Meadow Brook. The practical reason for this rule is that motors crashing into view would bother the horses, but a more romantic and—to anyone who knows Clark—an equally plausible explanation is his own feeling that spectators arriving on foot will seem to belong more surely in surroundings innocent, if only for that brief hour, of any machine. The master of ceremonies himself rides about on a little piebald pony.

The human equation is of much value on the race course and success in efforts to substitute machines for men in many departments would not add to the glamor of the great game. Judging, timing and other essential things should be done by men, even if they are not infallible. It might even be attempted, if the craze for mechanization continues, to have the starting done by a lay figure. The stress in any meeting should be altogether on the horses and the races. Too many machines, for whatever use, are decidedly off-side.

The Englewood, Colorado, Monitor observes that mining activity is increasing in that state, and that many hundreds more miners are at work than in a number of years past. Other states are beginning to report similar activity. Any upturn in mining stimulates employment and purchasing power generally and is a great benefit to the public.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC
SPEEDS COMPARED

There is evidence upon which both to praise and blame motor vehicle operators in a recent survey of highway traffic speeds, reports the National Automobile Club.

The survey shows the average motorist travels at a rate of 41.2 miles an hour on the open highway. It must be understood that this is not an average speed but rather the average maximum speed chosen by a group of drivers who numbered 45,000.

Tourist drivers were found to be faster than local drivers. It is significant, perhaps, that the tourist is so motivated by haste that not even unfamiliarity with the roads over which he is traveling can deter him in his flight to reach his objective. It is unflattering commentary, too, upon the fashion in which many motor vacationists are sidetracked from one of the greatest virtues of their travels—that of seeing the country.

Despite the virtually universal opinion to the contrary, the private passenger car operator is not the fastest driver on the highway. This distinction, doubtful or otherwise, belongs to the bus operator who is shown to prefer a maximum speed of 43.1 miles an hour.

The truck driver brings up the rear with a speed of 34.1 miles an hour. It is one which the truck driver may advance in defense of the point that he is not the slow-poke on the rural highway that other vehicle operators are wont to accuse him of being. At the same time, depending of course upon the condition of the vehicle he is operating, he can cite the figure in answer to the allegation that his speed is too high for safety.

Faster Brakes Necessary

Motorists impressed by the lightning acceleration of their new cars should not fail to remember that correspondingly fast deceleration is demanded to assure safety in operating the vehicle, states L. G. Evans, Director of Roadside Service of the National Automobile Club. It is guaranteed by the initial adjustment of the brakes, but making it certainly available on all subsequent occasions is a matter of having the brakes inspected and adjusted at regular intervals.

Higher Steering Ratios

Steering gear ratios in the latest model cars run as high as 23 to 1; far higher in the average case than ever before, according to L. G. Evans, Director of Roadside Service of the National Automobile Club. That means easy but relatively slow steering and to make certain that the speed does not get too low, it is more important than ever that attention be paid to regular inflation of the tires to the recommended pressure. It is a safety precaution.

SOME QUESTIONS
AND ANSWERSSome Little Known Matters
That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What are the two largest manufactures of Massachusetts?

Answer: The making of cotton and woolen goods and boots and shoes, together with a vast amount of accessories and cut stock. Almost half of the footwear made in the United States is produced in Massachusetts.

Question: Who wrote the "Hymn of Praise," and why?

Answer: Mendelssohn. He was commissioned in 1840 by the Leipzig authorities to compose the music for the four hundredth anniversary of the invention of printing.

Question: What is the difference between an animal or a plant or a mineral?

Answer: Animals have organs, which they use for eating, drinking, breathing and other purposes. Most animals are able to move from place to place, and even those which are unable to move about—the coral, for example—are able to move parts of their bodies.

Plants differ in structure from animals, but they, too, have organs for various purposes.

Minerals, on the other hand, have no organs, and show no signs of life. A mineral does not grow by assimilating food, but by additions from the outside. A piece of mineral may be broken into a dozen pieces, but each piece is exactly as much a mineral as before. In an animal or plant, however, each part has a special purpose, and it is maimed or destroyed if it is cut into pieces.

This difference between minerals and animals or plants can be expressed in a more scientific way by saying that a mineral is homogeneous; in other words, every part of it is like every other part. An animal is composed of bones, flesh, blood, skin, hair or fur and the like, whereas a mineral is only one thing.

Question: What sea has been called a "Tired Sea," and why?

Answer: The Mediterranean, for on its shores have dwelt old peoples and empires now dead who left only relics of bygone days.

Question: Where is Lombardy?

Answer: That part of northern Italy which derived its name from the Lombards. It now comprises the provinces of Bergamo, Brescia, Como, Cremona, Mantua, Milan, Pavia, Sondria and Varese.

Question: What are some of the most important theories regarding the causes of earthquakes?

Answer: Slippings in the earth's crust, usually the extension of old or the formation of new faults (a relative displacement of the two masses of rock separated by a fracture).

Volcanoes.
Collapse of underground caves.
Leaky oceans; bad plumbing, geologically speaking, causes disorders in the apartment leased by the human race.

STORY OF MONTH OF NOVEMBER

"November woods are bare and still; November days are clear and bright; Each noon burns up the morning's chill."

The morning's snow is gone by night."

The above poem by Jackson brings out the bareness and chill of the month of November. In fact, this month has had fewer good words spoken for it, perhaps, than any other.

As fruits and leaves and the day itself acquire a bright tint just before they fall, so the year is near its setting. October is the sunset sky, November the later twilight.

Softening snow seldom hides the bareness of the fields and shrill, gusty winds whirl about the dead leaves, which have lost the last vestige of their gorgeous October color.

The Anglo-Saxons, who had a way of naming things simply, called November the "blood month," the name probably having reference to the killing of animals for the winter supply of meat. The month is by no means without its special attractions, and many a lover of out of doors finds the lazy, mystical days of Indian summer one of the most delightful seasons of the year.

November was one of the months to which the Romans never troubled themselves to give a specific name. "The ninth month," it was called, for that was originally its place in the year and from the Latin word "novem," meaning nine, has come the present name. Later, when two extra months were added and November became the eleventh in the series, its name was not changed.

The harvesting season is over, the crops are secure in the barns, and thus there comes each year a repetition of that experience of the Pilgrims which resulted in the proclamation of the first Thanksgiving. In Canada, where crops are gathered somewhat earlier, Thanksgiving Day falls in October.

Of the sports, football seems to belong to November. The exciting scrimmages which would be too violent for the earlier and warmer months seem to quicken the blood, not only of the contestants, but of the thousands of people who sit through the game and seem to feel no discomfort from the frosty air.

Harris Nader, Jr., of West Point, Georgia, recently won the children's popularity contest in the Chattahoochee Valley.

SOME HEROES
AND EXPLOITS
OF EARLY TIMESIndependence of Scotland
Won By Untiring Efforts
Of Intrepid Leader

(By Maude Larue Ives)

This gallant Scottish king, who lived from 1274 to 1329, spent a large part of his life in the effort to free his country from British rule. The oft told tale about Bruce and the spider is said to refer to a happening during the darkest of that struggle.

While a fugitive, Bruce lay one morning on his hard bed in a wretched hut and saw, on the roof above him, a spider swinging by a thread of its own spinning. It was trying to sew itself from one beam to another, and again and again made the attempt in vain. When it had tried six times, Bruce realized that was exactly the number of battles he had fought unsuccessfully against the English, and he decided that if the spider tried a seventh time and succeeded he himself would renew his courage and try again. The spider's seventh attempt was successful and Bruce took heart and staged another battle, this time being successful.

Early in his career Bruce, then the Earl of Carrick, swore allegiance to Edward I, king of England, and, though he occasionally changed sides and aided the patriot, William Wallace, he managed to maintain friendly relations with King Edward until 1306. In that year during a quarrel he killed "Red Comyn," a claimant to the Scottish throne, and immediately afterward assembled his vassals and had himself crowned king at Scone. Defeat by the English followed and late in the year he dismissed his troops, retired to the Irish coast and let his enemies think him dead. The following spring, however, he landed in Carrick, defeated the English, and within two years was in control of almost all of Scotland.

He then advanced into England, laying waste to the country, and in 1314 defeated the English in the famous battle at Bannockburn as the latter were advancing under Edward II to the relief of the garrison at Stirling. For years hostilities continued at intervals, with occasional treaties which did not establish peace. It was not until 1328 that England finally recognized the independence of Scotland and the right of Bruce to the throne. Bruce did not live long after the completion of his life's desire, dying of leprosy in 1329. His son David succeeded him to the throne.

COLUMN OF N. R. A. FACTS

INFORMATION regarding the N. R. A. will be furnished each week by W. H. CLAY, Chairman of the local N. R. A. Publicity Committee.

The NRA has enlisted the people of the United States in an effort of constructive patriotism, Charles F. Horner, Special Assistant to National Recovery Administrator, told the Daughters of the American Revolution in a speech at their Washington convention. It is a battle against humanity's strongest foe—economic insecurity. It is to be fought with enlightened common sense, as well as with pity and human understanding.

"NRA," he said, "is the cohesive force that draws all the individuals of a nation into one group working for and with each other toward the common end of security for every one. It has its basis not in any involved, difficult-to-understand system of economy, but in the simplest of all ethical formulae: the Golden Rule."

"But it is a Golden Rule that appeals to the fundamental self interest of every human being, for, while the individual is doing 'as he would be done by' he is helping to create a society in which his chances of happiness and those of the people who are dearest to him are manifoldly increased."

"One has only to contrast the despair of March, a year ago—when fear lurked in the eyes of everyone; when men saw the building of a life time crumbling under the unsure feet of their children; when mothers saw the sons and daughters for whom they had made sacrifices starting out in adult life with no hope ahead, their confidence shaken by experience of an economic cataclysm with the spirit of hope revived which is so evident today, to realize what NRA has meant to a nation ridden with fear."

"What NRA has done in a year of groping in the dark, in attempting to wean a populace away from blind, unreasoning selfishness, to the ideal of working in unison for the common good, is as nothing to what NRA can and will do, functioning on the solid foundation of universal cooperation."

"For the principle of NRA is here to stay. It is no palliative, merely to act as a cathartic for the existing economic indigestion, but a preventive against future recurrence of such disasters as that of the last four years. It is a sound, workable, common sense plan for solid reconstruction, a specific against future economic maladjustment. It is the hope of every mother for the future of her children; a world in which each will have a chance to be self-supporting without fear of insecurity lurking ever in the background."

"And justice is the keynote of the NRA. It is based on the theory of the inevitable inter-relation of all groups of the nation: producer, laborer and consumer. No group may be sacrificed for the benefit of another. Each must share in the good derived from its functioning."

"Every individual is involved, no matter what group he may fall into. To the layman, the idea of a code of fair competition may seem remote and theoretical, but, in essence, it is merely the agency for putting into practice the principles outlined by NRA of fair business practice, equality of opportunity, just compensation for labor, a fairer distribution of the nation's wealth, and security against impermanence of employment."

"The codes of fair competition take into consideration the rights of every group involved. No one group shall profit at the expense of the other. Labor need fear no discrimination in favor of capital; business need have no qualms about 'labor being in the saddle'; the consumer need fear no injustice at the hands of either of the two aforementioned groups. Each group has an equal voice in the drawing up of its governing code. Each is protected by just representation not only in their own groups, but also by a government agent acting as a balance wheel in the setting up of a code of fair competition."

He said that as a mother teaches her child rules of conduct to observe in his relation with the rest of the world and makes his path through life easier, so the government invites the component parts of its economic system to formulate codes whereby each person involved may secure the greatest good from cooperative working of the group."

"It is therefore clear," he continued, "that whoever fails to abide by the code under which he works, whether he be producer, worker or consumer, inevitably hurts not only his own group, but himself. It is a circle from which the individual cannot escape, so closely is our economic system coordinated. For example, the housewife who buys cheap goods, which obviously cannot be produced except by exploited labor, is encouraging a practice which must eventually reflect upon her own welfare and that of her family. Cheap labor in the market sets up unhealthy competition that scales down the price of all labor. No matter to what class this housewife may belong, inevitably as night follows day, her economic status must be affected by a low standard of wage. The law of supply and demand is ever at work for labor as well as for goods, and will affect the family income, so that no matter how cheaply she may buy things, in the end she will have less with which to buy."

"It is this vicious practice of forcing down the wage scale and thus reducing the consuming power of the nation that NRA has been and will continue to fight with such intensity."

This, he said, will make a world of greater opportunity and greater justice and the people of America, their genius for co-operation and organization unimpaired, led by the Man in the White House, will continue to move forward toward the goal of permanent peace based upon security for all.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Code Authority Budgets: The most important task now facing all Code Authorities is the preparation of budgets to cover their expenses in the coming year. The administrator has sent out suggestions for their preparation. All budgets must be approved by him before the Code Authorities have the legal right to start collections. While the office staffs of Code Authorities, and sometimes the government representatives who attend meetings, are paid, the industry members serve without salaries.

Preserving Industrial Peace: Code Authorities and their sub-committees are doing a tremendous job in preserving the peace of the industrial world. Indications of this appear in the report of the accomplishments of the Cotton Textile National Relations Board. This board was created August 2, 1933, less than a month after President Roosevelt signed the Cotton Textile Industry Code. To date, it has investigated 4000 complaints. Approximately 800 were found to need adjustment. Three or four required considerable attention. Strikes broke out in half a dozen cases, but were settled within a very few days. Only one case had to be carried to the National Compliance Board.

Workers Get Their Due: Between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 have been restored to employees by firms paying less than minimum wages in violation of their industry codes. The agencies handling the cases have required the employers to put certified public accountants on their books to ascertain the amounts due the workers and then have insisted that the violators sign bonds, promising future adherence to code requirements. No case of back-sliding has yet come to the attention of the National Compliance Board.

Speeding Up Code Administration: The Administrative Division of NRA has been reorganized to expedite the handling of all code matters. Administrator Johnson has spread the responsibility among division administrators, under whom are deputies and assistant deputies. Anyone with NRA business may now get quick and direct action through divisional or deputy administrators or one of their assistants, to whom the Administrator has delegated responsibility for decisions and who are in intimate contact with their special codes and industries.

Quick Action For Compliance: The Compliance Division has also been reorganized, so the Code Authorities can transmit cases of code violations directly to the State Compliance Director, who will turn them over, in the event of other means of obtaining compliance having failed, to a United States Attorney for appropriate court action. Instruction has gone out from the Administrator's office to deputy administrators, state compliance directors and code authorities to concentrate upon code compliance, enforcement and administration. A new Litigation and Enforcement Agency has been created to act promptly with the Department of Justice on all cases brought into court by this procedure.

Code Violators Fined: The Litigation and Enforcement Agency has begun to function in a promising manner. Two of the first cases which it prepared for court action were so conclusive that the defendants pleaded "guilty" and paid fines. The offenders were the Greenville Finishing Company, Greenville, R. I., and the Radiance Dye Works, Inc., Paterson, N. J. Both were charged with violating the code regulations respecting the number of hours machines may be operated daily. Their fines were $1500 for the Greenville establishment and $750 for the Paterson plant. The Radiance Piece Dye Works, Inc., is capitalized at $25,000,000 and is one of the largest organizations subject to the Rayon and Silk Dyeing and Printing Code. In pleading "guilty," the officials told the court through their attorney that they not only were sorry for their conduct but "wholeheartedly" favored the NRA program.

Minimum Wage For Piece Workers: It is estimated that 8,000,000 workers will be affected by the NRA ruling that piece workers must be paid at least minimum wages, while waiting for something to do. A knitted underwear firm was discovered to be cutting the minimum wage in two by keeping its piece workers idle half a time. In the knitted underwear industry alone there are 25,000 piece workers.

The Right To "Customary Time

Off" Bank employees have a right to "customary time off" on legal holidays and must not be docked for it. That ruling has just been made by Division Administrator H. O. King. He also held that it would be in violation of the Banking Code to force employees to take part of their vacations or sick leaves without pay to make up for holiday rest periods with pay.

MINING NOTES OF VARIOUS SECTIONS

George M. Icard, a native of Nevada County, who has spent a number of years as a soldier in the Philippine Islands, has returned to reopen the old Icard properties between Rough and Ready and the Newtown district which were owned by his father, the late John Icard. Development work is being carried on in three phases on the estate. A prospect shaft near the eastern end of the tract is being sunk in the hopes of cutting the Abe Lincoln vein, named after the president who was in office when the original shaft was sunk. A gasoline hoist is being used and a small crew of men are sinking the new shaft.

A giant headframe over the shaft of the Prescott Hill Mine on Osborne Hill southwest of Grass Valley, was brought crashing to the ground recently by charges of dynamite placed by crews who are rehabilitating the property, now owned by the Empire-Star Mines Company, Ltd. The structure, which was 117 feet high, has stood for more than fifty years. It was built by Charles A. Brockington of Grass Valley, who has eight similar structures to his credit. A 1,750-foot incline shaft from the old headframe is completely caved. It is being cleaned out and retimbered. A new headframe has been erected adjacent to the old shaft and sinking has been carried on to the 175-foot level. The old headframe fell across the scenic gravel road to the crest of Osborne Hill and is being cut into sections and removed. The roads will be opened again in a few days.

Work has begun on auxiliary surface buildings at both the ew and Old Brunswick Mines, properties of the Idaho-Maryland Mines Company, Ltd. near Grass Valley. Excavations are being made by a tractor and crew of men for the foundations of a new tool room and blacksmith shop at the Old Brunswick Shop buildings and a garage will be built at the New Brunswick.

The Ohio Mines Company is installing a $30,000 power plant on its gold silver mines at Goldpoint, formerly known as Hornsilver. Equipment includes two massive Diesel engines, two generators and auxiliary machinery. The company owns the Orleans, Townsite, Western and other properties and has blocked out a large reserve of milling ore. The mill has been reconditioned, and powerful mine equipment is in place. Production is scheduled to commence before the year ends.

The experimental shaft driller between the Old Brunswick and the Idaho-Maryland Mines has reached a depth of over 100 feet. A core four feet and seven inches in diameter and over ten feet in length was taken out this week. It exceeds the previous record length core taken from the fifty-foot level some weeks ago by three feet.

Vein material exposed in the Buena Vista Prospect, five miles west of Redding, is affording a high gold recovery. This is the statement of Arthur Thompson, who lives on the property and is working it. The owner is H. G. Graves of Oakland. The mine was discovered by A. Abel in 1927. The vein averages about five feet in width.

Raymond Wilmoth, a State Emergency Relief Administration worker on a city sewer project received a "bonus" in the form of a $10 gold nugget he unearthed three feet from the surface near the Kelly residence.

Announcement has been made here that V. C. Rirardi, a San Francisco attorney, and associates have taken over the Fortuna group of mining claims along Deer Creek near the Champion holdings. The Fortuna group includes the Orleans and part of the Mountaineer properties. De-watering of the Live Yankee shaft, which was last worked in the nineties, will begin as soon as pumping equipment can be set up. Major George Nihell, who was in charge of operations before the mine was shut down, will be engaged as superintendent. Richard says the operating company will be a closed corporation. His associates are Henry Kolker, Hollywood; and James Collins, Long Beach. Eastern capital is financing the company.

The tunnel being driven to cut the orebody below the old workings in the Standard Mine has advanced 800 feet from daylight and is nearing its objective. A small vein carrying fairly rich ore has been encountered and is being developed. Ten stamps and a flotation plant are treating profitable ore. The Standard, formerly a noted producer of rich ore, is operated by the Indian Valley Mining Company.

OLD HISTORICAL DATA OF THE COLMA VALLEY

Incidents of Pioneer Days and Characters Recalled For Our Readers

(By An Old-Timer)

The pioneers of Daly City (it was all Colma then) twenty-five years ago, blazed the educational trail at the $45,000 school bond election held at the Jefferson school building on December 4, 1909. The vote was light, being 176 Yes and 64 No. The voting hours, noon until sundown (4:51 p. m.), were the cause of the light vote that prevented the men employed in the city from casting their ballots, and, besides, that was before the dear women could vote. There was a strong opposition to these bonds, which were for building the Vista Grande and Crocker schools—and the arguments of the opponents were that the schools "would not be needed for twenty years" and that the "one teacher class at Ryan's Hall was all that was needed." The fallacy of this contention was disproved almost as soon as the two school buildings were built, owing to the rapidly increasing population of Vista Grande, Mission, Hillcrest and Crocker tracts, and it was only a few years that the Woodrow Wilson, Thornton and Pershing schools had to be erected, and then followed the renting of other school facilities.

This is all interesting and timely information on account of the spirited $80,000 school bond election in Daly City last Friday, November 2, 1934, which was carried by a vote of 816 to 227; a larger percentage than we old pioneers were able to get, but the negative arguments were much stronger then, and, besides, we had to make our fight for the bonds without the assistance of the women, who were a particularly important factor at this latest election. But we insist with pride that the pioneers blazed the educational trail of this thriving young city, that, including the Jefferson Union High, makes this equal if not superior to any other school area in San Mateo County. And our auxiliary P. T. A. organizations cannot be surpassed anywhere. We certainly have cause to be proud of our local school system in every respect, because there are none better.

It is really thrilling to contemplate our past and present development and then look onward into the future. We take our hats off in reverence to the first pioneers—such men as R. S. Thornton, James T. Casey Sr., Jason Wight, Herman Dunk, J. E. King, S. S. White, Michael Comeford, M. Hollingsworth, I. G. Knowles, J. W. Marchbank and others. Those original pioneers were real sturdy characters, but those who have followed have shown their real metal in the development of this, the most important suburban locality of San Francisco. Of course, San Francisco is just "rolling over on us and we cannot get out of its way," as has been said in the Record many times years ago, but the refugees made the pathway for the roller invitingly easy.

An esteemed friend of Old Timer gave gladness by remarking the other day that she is saving each and every one of these articles, because there is interesting value that will increase during the coming years. Thanks! That is just in line with my treasured data that enables me to relate for you readers the events of a quarter of a century ago. I sincerely hope to greet you all twenty-five years hence, so that we can compare notes. That will be in 1959—a splendid time to plan for the following Christmas and New Year celebrations in the Palisades Prosperity at Thornton Beach, to glorify all our marvelous achievements. What may happen during the next twenty-five years could not surpass the marvelous changes that have been made during the past quarter of a century—and I'll "be seeing you" there, lady.

W. N. Flaherty has finished his nice cottage on Hillcrest drive, next lot west of the Pappas saloon and opposite George Nick's grocery.

William Sellig, formerly of the Home of Peace Cemetery, writes from Seward, mining district, Alaska, advising everybody to stay away. Meat, 75 cents a pound; eggs, two bits apiece, and no meat or eggs, and the temperature averages 55 degrees below zero in this early part of November.

Mrs. Gus Koss of Santa Ana avenue on the sick list, was carefully nursed by two kindly neighbors—Mrs. J. A. Campbell and Mrs. Katie Bodie.

Dr. L. B. Holmes of Fairbanks, Nebraska, has located in Colma, and with his family, is residing in one of the Ben Haubrich cottages on Price street.

Paul Fisher was knocked from his truck by a South San Francisco car and was badly bruised and one of the horses had his leg skinned.

M. T. Goodrich of San Francisco purchased Mrs. Veldi's grocery, corner Green avenue and Brunswick street.

Mrs. F. S. Valkenberg and B. E. Gardiner are improving their Gambeta avenue homes with electric lights.

Mickey Griffin (bless his heart) has returned from his eastern trip and now we can all be happy again with that jolly character, for one of his grand roundups.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"Janet and Arthur are staying?"

"Yes, luckily."

He saw Arthur next day. The young men discussed the situation at the academy. "He hates you, Wilton, as I suppose a disappointed and by no means noble lover can hate his rival. Remember, this man had known Berenice all her life; you come in and sweep away his little air castle in a moment."

"Thank God!"

"Don't tempt fate! Leave this region—leave Berenice for a time. You can write to each other. He would not surely intercept your letters."

"Oh, wouldn't he?"

"Send them under cover to me."

"That's a good idea! If I ever need to do that."

"Take my advice and get out. I never yet went uninvited into a yard where there were bulldogs," Arthur said philosophically. "Balder's a mean, sulky fellow—and that's the best can be said of him. I think he would do anything for Haskell, though whether in a rage or devotion it's hard to tell."

"What harm could Balder do me?"

"Don't get in his way—that's all!"

After that the days became a waiting for Berenice in the farmhouse over which the blue-black clouds of winter were now driving. Wilton kept at bay his fears and doubts by as hard manual labor as Jerry was willing to let him do. Every day he went to the oak, and at last his hand closed on the promised letter. He shut himself in his bedroom to read it:

"Dear Wilton:

"I haven't written before because I have been nursing Mother Martha. She refused to go to bed, poor dear, and died very quietly in her chair this morning. The servants are very much afraid. Janet will move up to Mother Martha's room soon, and even Gordon Haskell approves of this. He is afraid I will be nervous, though how he could expect us to be very lively in that huge place I don't know. I have not mourned for dear Mother Martha. She was old and tired and wanted to go. Cook has her usual story—of her waking up in the night and seeing a boat with children in the moonlight—rowing Mother Martha. How can a place prosper under such a reign of superstition?"

Arthur, arriving later, told him the hour of the funeral, and the next day but one he watched the procession from a nearby hill winding a black course through the bleak air. Jerry had gone to be one of the mourners, and spent the rest of the day rather grandly in black, square-looking clothes. "The old place will breathe its last some time, just as Martha did," he said comfortably. "And, oh, Berenice asked me to give you this."

It was another little note, saying that she had gone down to see if the figures were safe, and to tend them a little as Mother Martha had.

"... though I did it more in memory of her than to satisfy any feeling of my own—those poor symbols are nothing now! Maybe poor Mother Martha has found her charges in that other world. I like to think of them holding out their hands to her. The cook, of course, was dreaming and romancing—but it was a pretty idea—their rowing her across the lake. She went so quietly—almost as if some one had stopped at the door and beckoned her."

Wilton poured out his heart in a long letter—wondering at the inadequacy of words, their nimble, elusive ways of refusing to carry burdens of emotion. On his way to the oak he met Sally Welford, who had been to the funeral.

She nodded brightly to him. "You are still around these parts, Mr. Payne?"

"Yes, Sally. You left the academy of your own accord. But I didn't. You see, I am engaged to be married to Miss Bracebridge."

"So I've heard, sir. We're all glad. We wish it could be soon. He might as well give her up first as last."

"I agree with you."

She went on a few paces—turned back. "Mr. Wilton, I wouldn't stay up here too long."

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I feel trouble," she answered. Wilton looked after her wonderingly until the dip of the hill hid her from his sight.

CHAPTER VIII

Janet and Arthur had announced their engagement to Berenice, but not to Gordon Haskell, suspecting him of having little sympathy with engagements between young and impecunious people. Mrs. Denver was also admitted to their confidence, and one dark December night the four gathered about the library and talked in whispers, though listeners could not be many. Only one servant remained in the kitchen—the others having yielded to their fears. Mrs. Denver welcomed her own additional duties as an outlet for her pent-up emotions. She had odd little disputes with Gordon over what she considered foolish things—the packing away of table linen, the ordering of certain things in abundance while others on the list were left out altogether.

To Arthur she confided her suspicions that Haskell was getting ready for some move which should make a radical change in their existence. "I believe he doesn't want the day scholars," she ventured her opinion. "I think he's just as glad they are dropped off. Then the heat of the winter is ahead of us, and many of those boys and girls couldn't come far through the snow anyway. I don't relish the thought of being besieged through the long winter months. Do you think he means to murder us all?"

"He hasn't courage enough for that. The man is an arrant coward—afraid of his own shadow really—though he does bluster so! Cheer up, Mrs. Denver. There would always be a way of getting out of this place. Maybe he'll send us out as he did poor Wilton."

"Well, I hope it won't be at night—think of waiting at that station at Blade for the down train."

This night the four heard the splashing of heavy rollers against the rocks of the shore, and knew it portended storm. Haskell came to the door once. "There's a door slamming somewhere, Fleming," he said; "if there is anything I abhor it's a slamming door. Won't you go look for it?"

Arthur went obediently. Outside of his creaking room, to which he had never become accustomed, the old academy had lost most of its terrors for him. Upstairs and downstairs he went. In the corridor of the basement he saw Balder gazing through the glass peephole.

"Aren't you well enough acquainted with those figures?" Arthur queried. Balder shambled off. "Now Mother Martha's gone," he muttered, "they might be forgotten."

"Can you locate that slamming door?"

"Yes, top floor—east wing—Mother Martha's—always did slam unless it was bolted."

Arthur went with this information to Haskell. "Lock your door when you come out," Haskell commanded Janet, who now occupied Mother Martha's room. Then he went on down into the basement. A single lamp lit the corridor, the dimness broken at one point by the red glow from the kitchen fire. From a dark recess Balder stepped suddenly in front of his master, and Haskell started violently.

"Why are you always hanging around? Go to your room; or go out to the barns. You are always under foot."

"I am—am I—well, you'll need old Balder again some day."

"What do you mean?"

"I want some money."

"I haven't any! This mad freak of Miss Bracebridge to revive the school has taken everything."

Balder grinned. "You can always get money, Boss, for Balder."

"Look here, what you do—is on your own responsibility."

"Always on my own responsibility. I'm tough. You're tender! A bit of a scholar, as they say—a white-handed scholar."

Haskell aimed a stinging blow at him; Balder dodged and waved a paw as if a mosquito had come after him. "You'll never get Wilton Payne out of this neighborhood. That man knows what he wants and means to have it. They have a regular rural free delivery. Miss Bracebridge sends her notes by Mr. Fleming; that old tree near the cross roads. You know her writing well—don't you? You've seen it often enough?"

"Of course I know her writing."

"Well! Can't you put two and two together?"

"You talk more, say less than any human being I know. Get out of here."

"I can keep a secret," Balder vowed suddenly.

"I am not so sure of that."

The man shuffled off down the corridor.

"There's only one way to get rid of that brute," Haskell muttered to himself. "Leave this great, rotting pile—and go out into the world! But I can't go without her—I can't. She's all that keeps me sane."

CALIFORNIA News of the Week

From Chislers' Gulch, the gambler's paradise, to the aerial exhibit at Gilmore Flying Field, Grass Valley's Gold Quartz Discovery celebration was announced a success. This was the city's fourth annual celebration of the discovery of quartz near the town in 1850. Many famed characters of the gold days were on hand to anecdote for the benefit of visitors.

Although he wishes it, David Lamson, to be retired for wife-murder, cannot remain at San Quentin until he gets a new trial or his freedom, the law declares. It is mandatory that the accused wife-murderer be removed from the penitentiary to the Santa Clara County Jail at San Jose.

In the Hawaii, a 24-foot schooner, three youths, the oldest 24, sailed out of San Pedro harbor for Honolulu. The tiny craft has no motor and will depend entirely on sail. Neither has it a radio receiver. Frank Anderson, 22-year-old owner of the boat, said they hoped to reach the islands in three weeks, a crowflight distance of 2300 miles but much longer by sail.

"Hear ye! Hear ye! The Superior Court of Yolo County is now in session." With these words genial Sheriff J. M. Monroe opened the murder trial of Judson C. Duke, accused of shooting Lamar Hollingshead, asserted lover of Duke's wife. Duke has pleaded not guilty because of insanity. As the trial opened it became apparent that the "unwritten law" will become an important issue.

Growing popularity of the Townsend Plan was demonstrated when 10,000 San Diego Townsend Club members held a mass meeting to hear Ed Sample, former state senator and a Townsend backer, discuss merits of the plan. The meeting was called by Dr. F. E. Townsend, founder-president of the organization, who asked that club members throughout the nation assemble simultaneously.

To the tune of "California Here I Come" the United States fleet steamed out of Panama Bay, rounded Cape Mala and headed for their home in California waters. On the way north the fleet indulged in mock battles and maneuvers. The ships also witnessed aerial attacks. November 9 is the date set for the fleet's arrival at San Pedro.

Train crew and hoboes luckily escaped injury when the locomotive and 13 cars of the freight train on which they were riding jumped the track near San Leandro. A switch-lock had been smashed so as to derail a train. The scenic limited passenger train was scheduled to pass over the switch only four hours after the freight was derailed. Only two days before a switch was found smashed at Niles just in time to prevent a wreck.

"Six months in jail or leave the state," was the sentence of the Municipal Judge Brand of Los Angeles to 50 itinerants. The judge sentenced them all to 180 days, suspending the last 179 provided they leave the state 12 hours after their release from one day in jail. Postcards were supplied the box-car tourists to mail the judge from another state. Failure to do this made the tramps liable to capture to serve out their 179 day jail term.

Preliminary work such as building labor camps and distributing material has begun on the Standard Oil 175-mile pipeline project. The line will be one of the longest in the state, beginning at Rio Bravo near Bakersfield and ending five miles out at sea. The $4,000,000 project will furnish four months winter work for 500 men.

California Chamber of Commerce says that state employment is only 12 per cent under 1929, at the same time being 16 per cent more than 1932. Employment in the consumption goods industries equals 1929, while figures for the canning, meat packing, paper and chemical industries exceed those of that year.

The $22,000 back wage demands of 84 workmen who helped build the Fort Miley Veterans' Hospital at San Francisco have caused a ruling to be made which will be national in scope, according to Joseph J. Creem, California labor commissioner. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins made the ruling that there is no difference between a laborer and a common laborer. Workmen are entitled to the wage scale applicable to the tools used and work done. The ruling is the result of Creem's asking the labor secretary's opinion on the $22,000 wage demands.

A successful education program was put on by Mill Valley which organized a school to acquaint voters with the benefits and liabilities of the 23 State amendments.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

by Vance Wynn
© Public Ledger

The Spy Plot That Failed

IT WAS during the early days of the World war that a rough-looking man, who posed as a Belgian, began to frequent one of the branches of the Carnegie Library in Pittsburgh.

He was poorly dressed, wore a scraggly beard and seemed to have all of the time in the world.

Usually he went to the reference department of the library, and spent hours in reading books that had reference to America. He paid particular attention to the maps and one night was seen to be tracing some of these from one of the geographical works in the library.

Miss Frances Langfitt, the assistant librarian, noticed the man, and her suspicions were aroused.

So while the fellow spied around the shelves the young woman did a little spying on her own account.

Night after night she sat there with a green shade over her eyes apparently engrossed in her work, but in reality keeping tabs upon the Belgian who was not a Belgian.

One night she watched him replace a book on the shelf, and when he had departed she hastened over to that part of the library and obtained possession of this particular book.

It contained a coastwise map, and gave evidence of having been traced.

Before the next day had dawned the patriotic young woman had informed the Department of Justice of her suspicions of the man who had been visiting the library.

Operative Henry—that will have to be his name for the purpose of this article—was placed on the case at once.

He traced the man and found that he was a stranger in the city.

He located the house where he had a room and discovered he was going by the name of Jacob Harmon.

The fellow must have sensed the fact that he was being followed, because he ceased his visits to the library.

About the same time an undersized man with a decidedly German accent began to frequent the library.

When interrogated he gave the name of Emil Mayer.

This man pursued pretty nearly the same tactics as the other, but on the surface there did not seem to be any connection between the two.

One day he was followed to his room, and later in his absence a search was made of his effects.

There was nothing absolutely criminal, but the detectives did find a number of papers and tracings.

In themselves they seemed meaningless, but if it were possible to put them together they might have meant much.

At all events, the work of shadowing Harmon and Mayer continued without interruption.

Two and two were put together and the conclusion of the authorities was that the library had been made the rendezvous of German spies for nearly a year.

Of course it goes without saying that there was nothing in the library that was not open to the public at any time.

But the conviction grew that Harmon and Mayer were doing the preliminary work, which was afterwards verified by bolder and more audacious men who stole into navy yards and laid the foundations for destroying munition plants.

Operative Henry had several conversations with Miss Langfitt and he compared this with the reports which were brought in as a result of the shadowing of the two Germans.

Up to this point they had never been found together.

In the meanwhile an attempt was made to learn something of the previous history of the two men.

One of them it was learned had been visiting a number of the seacoast towns in New England and it was also alleged that he had not complied with the alien enemy registration laws.

One night United States agents started to follow the two men and then for the first time they joined one another in a little back room in the northwestern part of Pittsburgh.

They sat at a table and produced a coastwise map which they began to study.

That was the signal for the detectives.

The suspects were arrested and in twenty-four hours had been placed in a detention camp.

What became of them no one will tell.

The mystery has gone into that limbo which is the repository of so many war secrets but to this day there are persons in Pittsburgh who are satisfied that the timely discovery of the librarian cut off the connection between these men and the German war office.

Rattlesnake Island

Belle Isle, in Michigan, at one time was known as Rattlesnake Island because of the abundance of reptiles on it, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press. Hogs, immune to snake bite because of their outer layer of fat which prevents the venom from reaching the blood stream, were turned loose on the island and quickly rid it of snakes. However, the hogs became wild, the island became known as Hog Island, and when Detroit acquired it in 1870 for park purposes, hunters had to kill the dangerous hogs.

ASK THE MOTHER who has made this change

The average mother gives any laxative the family may be using, while family doctors give children a liquid laxative of suitable ingredients, suitable strength, and in suitable amount.

If you want to know just what a tremendous difference this means to any youngster, just inquire of any mother who has tried it!

She knows that a bilious boy or girl needs a gentle liquid laxative when constipated, and a little less if dose is repeated until bowels seem to be moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help.

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Get a bottle of the real California Syrup of Figs at any druggist's. All children like its agreeable taste, and it agrees with them. No need to give a child anything stronger. This fruity syrup is laxative enough; indeed, many adults use it in preference to pills and tablets.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, until the bowels are moving without any help.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

Grasshopper Control

Insect parasites and fungus diseases are helping control the grasshopper pest in infected regions.

If you tire easily—

why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition?

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve.

S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-globin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Grondona of Hillside boulevard were given a no host surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Garibaldi last Tuesday evening, the occasion being in honor of the eighth wedding anniversary of the former couple.

The table was prettily decorated in pink with silver baskets at each place. Hanging in the center of the table were three white wedding bells with a large silver and pink figure light, which hung from the wedding bells.

Mr. and Mrs. Grondona received a beautiful coffee table for their anniversary gift.

Those who took part were Messrs. and Mesdames John Garibaldi, William Lopes, George Armanino, Henry his anklefranks and Rollo Bono.

All present reported an enjoyable time and wished the honored guests many more such happy anniversaries.

Open Circuit Cause

Loose or defective electrical connections may cause an intermittent open circuit, with the circuit complete at times and open again at others, according to the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association.

One difficult cause to locate is a broken wire inside the insulation. If the electrical equipment of the car operates intermittently it is advisable to make a thorough examination of all connections and wiring for the source of the trouble.

Under Inflated Tires

An under-inflated tire will sometimes wear on the sides and appear not to wear at the center of the tread, according to the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association.

This is caused by the side walls of the tire flexing in such a way that the center of the tread folds or bends upward, allowing the weight to be carried on the side or outer portion of the tire.

Remember The Radiator

It requires lifting the hood of the car to refill the radiator of many new models, the cap having found a new location in the interest of improved appearance. The refilling unit having become hidden from view in that much more easily forgotten if the motorist happens to be of the absent-minded type so many are, remarks L. G. Evans, Director of Roadside Service of the National Automobile Club.

THEY ALL DO IT

SLOCAN DISTRICT BEST SILVER-LEAD CAMP LAID WASTE

Old Time Miners Are Now Seeking Other Pursuits Owing To Stagnation

They're raising oranges and lemons in Sandon now! according to Sidney Norman in the Vancouver Sun.

At least Johnny Harris is doing just that.

Nothing else to do!

In the lobby of the Reno Hotel, one rendezvous of operators, promoters and mining scouts, that is the prime topic of interest.

And believe it or not, the crop is quite satisfactory.

There are three lemons hanging precariously to the tree in the window, where it strains itself to catch the modicum of sunlight that seeps through to that town of the deep gulch, while, alongside the lemon crop is an attenuated orange tree that seems to be pining for its native haunts in far-off California.

And, on that tree, are real embryonic oranges, coaxed along by the prayers of Johnny and his charming wife.

And that in Sandon, in the Silvery Slocan district, best mining area of its kind on the North American map, laid waste by the enemies of silver.

Not a soul on the streets, or, to be exact, the street, because, as a matter of fact, Sandon is but a one-street town, built over rushing Carpenter Creek, which brawls its way in a covered flume beneath your feet.

Flume Brings Havoc

Freshets of spring have done their work. The flume ran street high in the early season, sweeping down great rocks as if they were pebbles, and tore out five hundred feet of the groundwork upon which Sandon moved and had its being.

Now, the wayfarer must sneak up on Sandon via the back street, which respectability had been wont to shun, and, with a muttered apology to past greatness, maneuver his flivver around the corner of the deserted Sandon Hotel.

Not a soul anywhere in sight. Up the street a piece, Johnny is found teetering uncertainly upon a step-ladder, plucking apples from his bottle-raised little orchard on the main street, where years ago miners and the hot-pollol of mines elbowed their way along crowded sidewalks.

An Object Lesson

Would that The Right Honorable Richard B. Bennett, Prime Minister of this grand Dominion, could see with his own eyes what failure to encourage development of one of the greatest natural resources of his country has wrought.

Utter stagnation has succeeded honest, creative activity.

Hills that once resounded, clear to the skies, with the crack of dynamite explosions are silent as the grave.

Five hundred prosperous, happy, working people have been forced to abandon their homes and seek more inviting scenes and opportunities.

Ruined By Gold

The worship of gold, the stubbornness of those who stem the demand for metallic money, has laid a country waste.

Sandon today has but a scant 100 population. Over 100 dwellings, once occupied with hard-working prosperous Canadians, leer at the visitor from drunkenly broken windows.

There is but one hope, not only in Sandon, but throughout the Slocan district, and that lies in the restoration of silver to its ancient place among money metals of the world.

The picture is reported in Kaslo, New Denver, Silverton, Slocan City and other settlements of the district, which once threatened to flood the world with the white metal and, instead, met its Waterloo in the victory of gold.

Just Hanging On

By actual count, there are but 114 souls left in once-bustling Sandon, vortex of one of the greatest mining excitements in the history of British Columbia.

Most of those who remain are children and their mothers, awaiting word that their fathers and husbands, who have fared forth, have found some work from which to wrest a livelihood.

Johnny Black is there yet, with his skeleton store, and he still clings to the belief that the old town will yet regain its former state of prosperity.

Billy Parham is there, too. Every-one remembers him and his little store of books, periodicals and now-and-then daily papers. He is smiling yet; still confident; still patiently awaiting the come-back that he is sure must come.

Remnants Of Greatness

One general store, one hotel, one news store. And that's all.

All that remains today of Sandon, the best silver-lead city this old province ever saw.

Leering emptiness everywhere!

The mountains, towering above, are the same as in the old days.

The rich silver-lead ore is still there—or by far the most of it, anyway—but industrial death reigns supreme.

And it's the same sad story from one end of the country to the other.

Kaslo boasts—or rather does not boast—of a scant 200 people. Now Denver is down to a population bed-rock. Three Forks has passed into ghost history and Slocan City is as silent as the grave.

From one end of the country to the other—stretching from the beautiful shores of Kootenay to the glacier-tipped mountains that frame New Denver—the Lucerne of America—not more than 400 people—men, women and children—still hang on.

Forced To Charity

And, let it be known, without disrespect to them, but to the everlasting shame of those who are responsible, a majority keep body and soul together through acceptance of relief.

Fine, honest, work-loving people all reduced to penury by paucity of national brains; no fault of their own. A country that ignores its obligations in that manner does not deserve to live. Third producer of silver in all the world, it hangs to the fetish of gold and thereby reduces a prosperous country to penury, want and charity.

The Slocan country—richest silver lead district in the Dominion and possibly on the continent—is prostrate.

Cut Off From World

Once every two weeks an abbreviated train creeps over C. P. R. tracks up the silent gulches, just to hold the franchise. For two weeks loyal citizens who hang on must go without communication with the outside world except through the grace of radio.

Liberal counted, there are less than 100 miners working in the whole district and almost one-half of that number are barely making ends meet at the Whitewater mine, where Sid Ross, the leaser, is making a wonderfully heroic effort to keep his head and forty others above the waters of industrial oblivion.

Fifteen men at Utica; half a dozen at Silversmith; a dozen at Monitor; a few scattered leasers here and there, and you have the roll-call of a district that once held the attention of the world and still offers some of the richest silver-lead prizes in all creation.

It would cost Canada not more than two and a quarter million dollars to buy all the domestic silver of the country at sixty four and a half cents per ounce, as is being done in the United States under the patriotic lead of President Roosevelt, and the nation could not lose money.

That sum—but a tithe of what is being spent in relief—would replace stagnation with optimism, activity and prosperity.

It would put hundreds of valuable citizens to work at remunerative, creative occupations in the Slocan district alone.

It would revive such almost-deserted towns as Kaslo, Ainsworth, Sandon, New Denver, Slocan City, Silverton, and a dozen others in other parts of this province.

1. When does 1/2 Off begin to apply?

With the bill for electricity used after the December, 1934, meter reading.

2. Who gets it?

All domestic and commercial lighting customers who have been customers at the same location of last year.

3. How do I benefit?

Perhaps you have been using electricity sparingly. Now you can use TWO DOLLARS more of electricity each month than last year and it will only cost ONE DOLLAR.

4. Must I add new appliances?

NO. However, each new electric appliance you install that would normally take EXTRA Electricity at full rate can now operate at half cost.

5. How do I apply?

No action on your part is necessary. The rate automatically applies to all who qualify.

One-half Off means this: That the amount of money by which your bill for any one month at same location exceeds your bill for the corresponding month a year back will be discounted 50%.

6. How does the rate work?

Your monthly bill will show that the normal cost for any electricity used in any month in excess of amount used in corresponding month of previous year has been cut in half.

7. Can you give an example?

Say your bill in January, 1934, was $3.00. You install an electric refrigerator, an electric heater and a new lamp. Your January, 1935, bill is $6.00. You have EXTRA Electricity to the amount of $3.00. You get a 1/2 Off discount of $1.50. The bill you pay in January, 1935, will therefore be only $4.50.

8. Does electric equipment installed through a Federal Housing Act loan give me this bargain rate?

Yes. This rate also applies to the use of additional equipment you install. This should be an extra inducement to you for obtaining a F. H. A. loan. See any banker.

9. How long will 1/2 Off be in effect?

Throughout our system for 12 months ending with the meter reading ending December, 1935.

10. Why was this 1/2 Off rate made?

To see if a bargain rate would cause a more liberal use of electricity, and take up part of the large power surplus in Northern California.

IMPORTANT!

It is hoped and expected by this company that this 1/2 Off rate will so stimulate use of electricity as to justify a reduction in the regular schedule.

THOROUGHBREDS AGAIN COMPETING

$60,000 Arlington Futurity. Toro Nancy is the leading two-year old money winner of the year.

Mrs. F. C. Mars, woman owner of the famous Milky Way Stock Farm, has nominated four good youngsters, all with handicap victories to their credit, for Saturday's six furlong event. The quartet are Gallacay, Whiskolo, South Gallant and Wher-away.

California racing stables and breeding farms will be well represented in the San Jose Handicap. The Rancho San Luis Rey has named Sir Ridgeway; Norman W. Church also has entered Toro Bang, in addition to the formidable Toro Nancy; Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, has nominated Lois Pan, a two year old filly with five handicap victories to her credit.

From Alameda county will come two contenders, Crack Shot, owned by Chief of Police Ed Carey of Emeryville and a product of the famous old Pleasanton race track, and Merced Chief, another youngster bred and trained by Major Sven Christensen, veteran breeder and stable owner of Pleasanton.

Other brilliant juveniles, all of them bluebloods of turfdom are Quintal, Leclarius, Mohac, Katie Bell, Green Flame, and Enella.

Twenty three nominations already are on file for the $25,000 Added Bay Meadows handicap, stellar feature of the forty day Bay Meadows racing program, to be run on December 15. Included are many of the turf's greatest and most famous stake horses—Gallat Sir, Riskulus, Azucar, Mr. Khayyam, Fairno, Clarify, Head Play, Blessed Event, Good Goods, Thomasville, Boardwalker, Redress, Royal Blunder, Sand Cloud, Top Row, Tonga Boy, Bien Fait, Time Supply, Jimmy Suro, Spieson, Ter-alice and Frank Ormont.
